Further research has been undertaken in order to fill some of the unknown dates in the provenance history. Ernest Brown & Phillips, Ltd are known to have established trading in 1903, and continued trading under the name of The Leicester Galleries until 1977. There is evidence to suggest that Picasso held his first British solo exhibition at the Ernest Brown & Phillips galleries in January 1921, which could have been the point at which this work came into their possession. Every effort has been made to gather further details, but no evidence has been found which indicates that this work has any issues of provenance relating to the years 1933-45.

Note that: This object has an incomplete provenance for the years 1933-1945

PROVENANCE

Acquisition (documentation); unknown

origin: Paris

Note that: This object has an incomplete provenance for the years 1933-1945

Further research has been undertaken in order to identify additional information relating to the provenance history. Every effort has been made to gather further details, but no evidence has been found which indicates that this work has any issues of provenance relating to the years 1933-45. It is likely that this photograph remained in the artist's possession until his death, and may have passed to the Musée Picasso in 1992, along with a large number of documentary and archival materials held by the Picasso Estate, including other photographs taken by Picasso at a similar date.

Libaude, Paris

Further research has been undertaken in order to fill some of the unknown dates in the provenance history. M Libaude, the first recorded owner of the work is a known Parisian collector of art by Degas, Picasso and others.

Every effort has been made to gather further details, but no evidence has been found which indicates that this work has any issues of provenance relating to the years 1933-45. A search has been conducted by the Art Loss Register at the request of the Royal Academy of Arts and the owner of the work, and has returned no matches. A copy of the certificate remains on file at the RA.

Art Loss Register check undertaken on 10 September 2019 Notes from Joy Glass: 1)M. Libaude, Paris, was a collector of Degas, Picasso and many others (no date). 2)It then went to another private collection in Paris - supposedly a member of the French government. 3) Then through a private dealer it was sold to Mr. & Harry Seggerman, California – the only date I have is the 1961 date from the Bonne Fete exhibition at UCLA. 4) In 1982 the Pascal de Sarthe Gallery in San Francisco, sold the work to Mr. and Mrs Liberman. It was in their collection until 1989. 5) Then sold to David Ramus, Atlanta, Georgia in 1989 - lent to Stadthalle Balingen in 1989 by David Ramus - that was not included in the provenance I sent to you. I did not realize I had left that out. I added this from the catalogue: [Private Collection, David Ramus, Atlanta, USA] 6) Sotheby's, New York, May 17, 1990 – sold 7) Pierre Jourdan-Barry, Paris by 1997. The reason I know this because it was offered to the present collector (Mr. Wolff) by a private dealer. I am not sure if Jourdan-Barry purchased it from Sotheby's. 8) I purchased the work in February of 2007 in Paris through a private dealer from a private collection for Mr. Wolff, but the prior owner's name was not given to me. Concerning The Mayor Gallery listing. I have a strong feeling that it never was at the gallery as inventory, other than the possible exhibition which is listed under exhibitions. However, the number sounds like an inventory number. It was listed in the provenance two different times, once by Sotheby's (but not as an exhibition). In the private offering in 1997 to me, it listed The Mayor Gallery, London, in the provenance and then after the sale at Sotheby's in 1990, the listing was Private Collection, Great Britain. I did not add this as I had no verification of any collection in England. The Art Loss Register made no reference to the Mayor Gallery, but they only list the provenance and not the exhibitions. If you decide to take it out of the provenance, that is O.K. with me, as I have no verification that it was actually in their inventory. I felt comfortable leaving the exhibition in because it was in the invoice. A word about the Princeton exhibition. No one else listed this. I happened to find it years later when I was doing research on another collector from Princeton and his collection and found this. Needless to say, I was pleasantly surprised. I still not happy with this provenance, but I can't find any further information. So many vague references and different provenances depending upon someone's memory. I have made sure with every acquisition that I try and have as much research and details as possible. Aside from the provenance information, there was a case with FBI in California concerning a "fake" Jane in 2010. I saw a photo published in the New York Post (not a newspaper you want to see your art!) I recognized as a fake immediately and contacted the FBI. They were thrilled to know where the original was, and I sent all the documentation and research to them. I was subpoenaed to testify, but at the last minute the forger admitted, etc. There were articles and images in the Los Angeles paper, the Art News and the internet. The images were the copy that the forger made, and not my collector's image. There was no reference to the fact that I had contacted the FBI, and they had the information to prove the forged one was a fake – I don't know why. That is why nothing is included in the Literature. Hope this helps. Please let me know if you need anything else.
